PROCLAMATION

Army Day has come to be of special significance to all citizens of the United States. In these troublesome and disturbed times, it is fortunate that one day a year can be designated as belonging to our Army, on which day public attention is focussed on the military establishment and those connected with it-its readiness to assume its emergency responsibilities-and its requirements, if we are to afford our defenders means adequate for the successful accomplishment of the missions assigned them by the people of the United States.

To the Military Order of the World War, under whose auspices Army Day was inaugurated and under whose sponsorship Army Day activities since have been conducted, must go a great deal of the credit for the increased respect for our military establishment and its personnel.

In these times so troublesome to our neighbors, it seems fitting that we should observe this day and call the attention of the citizens of this State to the necessity for maintaining an army adequate for our protection.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Harlan J. Bushfield, Governor of the State of South Dakota, designate April 6, 1939, as ARMY DAY, and do hereby ask all the citizens of South Dakota to observe it as such by displaying flags and taking part in observances sponsored by patriotic organizations.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of South Dakota to be hereto affixed.
